In the course of this discussion, Dr. Chandler stated that the present tax rate of Richmond would be sufficient if the city had not such a large per capita bonded indebtedness. This indebtedness, he said, amounted to $112.50, while the average of cities of Richmond's class was but $72. But two of these cities, however, he said, had public utilities to be counted in as an offset. The speaker declared that it should be made plain to the people that the need to increase taxes was to pay interest on bonded indebtedness, and not for any extra things that departments might be asking for.

Three alarms of fire at one time kept fire departments busy yesterday evening. One of the most destructive of the three rained a small grocery at St. John and M Streets about 12 o'clock in the evening. The entire stock of the grocery was destroyed as well as the furnishings of the proprietor, who lived above the store. High winds threatened to spread the blaze along the entire block and Chief Wise, who was in charge, found it necessary to send for aid. The corner of an adjoining home caught on fire but was extinguished. Before the fire was extinguished Chief Joynes and Wise found is necessary to leave to attend to another fire on St. John Street.

Of the amendment to provide for withdrawal from the league at the end of five years, the Senator said he believed that after the league had been in operation for five years, no nation would wish to withdraw, Therefore, this amendment, in his opinion, would be unobjectionable.

Senator Borah declared that Mr. Root's letter to Republican Chairman Hays had running through it "all the rich, full tones of Americanism and a positive and unmistakable plea for the preservation of the independence and integrity of the republic."

This is a case in which the lumber was stacked in a remote lumber yard with an almost impassable road to the nearest railway station. Tabor was largely in debt for the lumber to C. C. Mills. It was in eviednce that Tabor proposed to Mills that they heavily insure the lumber and then burn it, and that Mills indignantly refused. Cools Observers' Arder.

'The situation at Versailles for the last few days ought to be sufficient to cool the arder of those who have been most willing to turn over our vital affairs to a tribunal controlled by European powers. Why should any power in Europe or Asia oppose the reservation of the Monroe Dectrine unless it is proposed to do something in the future in contravention of that doctrine? Why should the American delegation be thwarted unless some one wants to get rid of the Monroe Dectrine, and why should they want to get rid of it?'

burn it, and that Mills indignantly refused.

A few months later, Tabor did insure the lumber and it was burned very soon thereafter. Blood hounds trailed to a house and to the very bed in which Yeargood had slept, and the evidence under which the men were convicted was that Tabor had employed Yeargood to do the burning.

The case was worked up by Deputy Insurance Commissioner F. M. Jordan. This is the thirty-seventh conviction for burning that James R. Young, insurance commissioner and fire marshal, has secured the past two years. The commissioner holds the record in the entire United States in this line of fire marshal work.

practice of reading private gas meters on the second and third floors of houses.

These meters were installed in order that the tenants on the floors above might be able to pay to the first floor occupant their proportionate parts of the gas bill for the house.

Councilman Jones stated that the new departure seriously inconvenienced 1.300 persons, and had been instituted to save the expense of one clerk. He thought there should be a return to the old system. Comptroller Cofer, who was in attendance on the meeting, expressed his willingness to have the upstairs meters read, and stated that he would issue orders at once with the expectation that the Finance Committee, in its budget, would recommend pay for the additional clerk.
